Problem Statement

How might we provide learners with a simple, accessible AI study assistant that can answer questions, explain concepts, summarize notes, generate practice quizzes, and recommend a learning path without requiring a complex learning platform?

Observed learner problems

| S.No | Problem / Pain Point                                                             | Impact on Learner                                   | Frequency |
|------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1    | Learners spend time searching multiple sources for a clear answer.               | Slower study and fragmented understanding.          | High      |
| 2    | Technical or academic topics can be difficult to understand from dense material. | Beginners may lose confidence or skip concepts.     | High      |
| 3    | Long notes are difficult to revise quickly.                                      | Important ideas can be missed during revision.      | High      |
| 4    | Creating practice questions manually takes time.                                 | Less active recall and self-testing.                | Medium    |
| 5    | Learners may not know what to study next.                                        | Unstructured progression from beginner to advanced. | Medium    |
